

Intentions, Not Expectations

2. Once you've finished, begin the journey below:

"Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and all his righteousness, and all things will be added unto you." Matthew 6:33

The Kingdom of God is all of God's good intentions for the world. God intends to direct passion, beauty and purity and is the divine director of all good intention. His plan is visual poetry animated by humans and nature.

If we believe in the kingdom of God then we must become the visual poetry of God's kingdom and should move with the beauty and passion and purity of a poem animated

We do that by using intentions, not expectations.

Expectations: Quantitative outcomes based on what we expect from something

Intentions: Qualitative outcomes based on what we intend to contribute to something

Take this time to process your personal intentions:

What am I passionate for (not from)?

What do I want beauty for (not from)?

What do I want purity for (not from)?

What actions will I plan based on what I intend?
